ARTS AND HUMANITIES

NEW!!

Association of Performing Arts Professionals Supports the Global Exchange of Arts.

The Association of Performing Arts Professionals (APAP) assists U.S. based APAP-member presenting professionals and their organizations and companies in building partnerships and collaborations with international touring artists, companies and their collaborators outside of the U.S., and to experience the work of artists from around the world in its cultural context.

APAP recognizes that promoting global exchanges of artists, their work and cross-cultural programs is essential to fully engage audiences and communities in the breadth and diversity of performing arts experiences. These exchanges provide an opportunity for presenting professionals to expand and deepen their knowledge of artists, traditions, and cultures from around the world. APAP awards U.S. based presenting organizations, agents, managers, producers, individual artists, and groups of performing arts professionals traveling outside of the U.S. to see the work of artists and companies or to develop and advance projects with foreign artists and their collaborators.

APAP strongly encourages but does not limit travel to the following: Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Middle East. In addition, APAP gives preference to applicants who are located in rural communities where exposure to other cultures and diverse arts programming may be less prevalent than in urban settings. APAP also highly encourages Group Applications and provides the Lead Partner Organization (i.e. the APAP member submitting the application on behalf of the group) with extra funds to offset the additional time and investment required to organize the trip. Group travel tends to spark collaboration and lays the foundation for commissioning and touring work in multiple sites across the U.S. It also provides the opportunity for travelers to experience work and meet creative teams together, to discuss potential block booking engagements and brainstorm programming initiatives.

Grant Amount: Grant amounts range from $2,000 to $10,000.

Eligibility: All applicants must be active members of APAP at the time of submission, and membership must extend at least one month beyond proposed travel dates.

Due Date: October 30, 2018

The Puffin Foundation West Accepting Applications for Social Justice Art Projects.

The Puffin Foundation West is now accepting applications for social justice art projects by individuals or organizations that educate and inform the public on important, timely topics facing the country and planet that others might hesitate to fund. The foundation gives special consideration to communities and school districts underserved by the arts.

Grant Amount: Grant amounts range from $550 to $2,500. Foundation grants are relatively modest in size and, therefore, the larger the annual budget, the less likely we may deem the funds necessary.

Eligibility: Tax-exempt organizations and individuals are eligible to apply. The Foundation typically will not consider grants from NFPs whose annual budget is $1 million or more. The overall size and annual budget of each applicant is taken into consideration.

Due Date: November 9, 2018

The Shubert Foundation Supports Dance, Theatre, and Arts-Related Programs.

The Shubert Foundation supports dance, theatre, and arts-related programs. Dance and Theatre applications are evaluated individually and with appropriate allowance for size and resources. The standard for awarding these grants is based on an assessment of each organization's operation and its contribution to the field. Artistic achievement, administrative strength, and fiscal stability are factored into each evaluation, as is the company's development of new work and other significant contributions to the field of professional theatre in the US.

Some organizations that help support the development of theatre and dance are eligible for funding. Grants to these art-related organizations are based principally on an assessment of their work, as demonstrated by past and current performance. Impact, administrative strength, and fiscal stability are also factored into each evaluation.

Grant Amount: Grant amounts not specified.

Eligibility: Applicants must be located in the US and have current 501(c)(3) tax-exempt status in order to be eligible for funding. The Foundation provides grants only to organizations that have an established artistic and administrative track record, as well as a history of fiscal responsibility. The Foundation does not make grants to individuals, nor does it provide funds for project support, audience development, direct subsidy of reduced-price admissions, conduit organizations (agencies that disburse funds to individuals or other organizations), media (film, TV, and radio), renovation projects, loans, capital or endowment campaigns.

Due Date: Theatre applications are due on December 1, 2018. All other applications are due on October 18, 2018.

The Brady Education Foundation Accepting Applications for Underserved Youth Education.

The Brady Education Foundation is now accepting applications for two types of education projects for underserved youth. These education projects include, program development and program evaluation:

- Program Development: These projects develop and test the feasibility of new programs for promoting positive cognitive and/or achievement outcomes for children (birth through 18 years) from underserved groups and/or low-resourced communities (minority ethnic groups, low-income families). For this type of project, the Foundation favors projects that:
  - Represent strong collaborative relationships between researchers and practitioners, and other community stakeholders as appropriate, and where the community/population being studied is represented in the project's leadership team;

- Develop programs consistent with strength-based approaches rather than deficit models;
- Leverage other funding;
- Develop programs that, in addition to showing promise of being effective, show promise of being affordable, accessible and sustainable.
- Consider the specific and unique assets and needs of children from underserved populations and/or low-resourced communities (e.g., minority ethnic groups, low-income communities). Concerning race and ethnicity, the Foundation seeks to increase understanding of what works best for children from diverse racial, ethnic, and cultural backgrounds (e.g., African American, Latino, Native American).
- Existing Program Evaluation: These projects evaluate the effectiveness of programs designed to promote positive cognitive and/or achievement outcomes for children (birth through 18 years) from underserved groups and/or low-resourced communities (minority ethnic groups, low-income families). For this type of project, the Foundation favors projects that:
  - Represent strong collaborative relationships between researchers and practitioners, and other community stakeholders as appropriate, and where the community/population being studied is represented in the project's leadership team;
  - Evaluate programs consistent with strength-based approaches rather than deficit models;
  - Projects for which operational funding for the program is already secured so that funding from the Foundation is used only for evaluation activities;
  - Evaluate programs that show promise of being affordable, accessible and sustainable;
  - Projects that employ randomized control designs (including wait-list control designs when assignment to wait-list condition is randomized). Comparison group designs may also be employed when strong efforts are made to control for potential confounding variables (e.g., due to selection effects). The Foundation rarely funds evaluation projects that employ neither randomized control nor comparison group designs;
  - Projects that evaluate effects on measurable child outcomes.
  - Consider the specific and unique assets and needs of children from underserved populations and/or low-resourced communities (e.g., minority ethnic groups, low-income communities). Concerning race and ethnicity, the Foundation seeks to increase understanding of what works best for children from diverse racial, ethnic, and cultural backgrounds (e.g., African American, Latino, Native American).

The Satterberg Foundation Seeks Letters of Inquiry for Organizations Committed to a Just Society and Sustainable Environment.

The Satterberg Foundation seeks to fund organizations that align with their mission to promote a Just Society and a Sustainable Environment. Through the Core Support Grant, Satterberg prioritizes organizations committed to working in the following categories:

- Environmental Justice: Organizations working across Satterberg's mission areas of promoting a Just Society and a Sustainable Environment.
- Advocacy and Civic Engagement: Organizations that are community-led, working for community-driven solutions; that create opportunities for communities to use their voices; and that work to remove inequity and systemic barriers.
- Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion: Organizations with a staff and board that reflect the communities they serve, or are intentionally working towards better reflecting their communities.
- Multi-Issue: Organizations that work across multiple elements of promoting a Just Society and a Sustainable Environment; that approach their work holistically, recognizing that people do not lead single-issue lives.

While applicant organizations do not need to have expertise in all of these areas, applicants are prioritized—and are usually more competitive—if their mission and work are centered in more than one of these categories. The Core Support Grant application process consists of a two-stage process: an open letter of inquiry (LOI) and an invited site visit.

Grant Amount: Multi-year general operating grant funding up to $100,000 per year, for up to three years, are available.

Eligibility: To be eligible, organizations must:

- Make the majority of its impact in Washington and/or California.

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Accepting Applications for the Culture of Health Prize.

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation is now accepting applications for the 2019 Culture of Health Prize. This prize recognizes communities that have come together around a commitment to health, opportunity, and equity through collaboration and inclusion, especially with historically marginalized populations and those facing the greatest barriers to good health. The Prize honors those communities that are working to give everyone the opportunity to live well, including residents that are often left behind.

A Culture of Health recognizes that where people live—their access to affordable and stable homes, quality schools, reliable transportation—make a difference in their opportunities to thrive, and ultimately all of this profoundly affects health and well-being. The Prize elevates the compelling stories of community members who are working together to transform neighborhoods, schools, businesses, and more—so that better health flourishes everywhere, for everyone. There are characteristics shared by communities that catalyze and sustain positive change. Because the Prize recognizes whole communities, applicants must think beyond their own individual organizations and initiatives to what has been accomplished across the community.

Applications will be judged based on the following the criteria:

- Defining health in the broadest possible terms.
- Committing to sustainable systems changes and policy-oriented long-term solutions.
- Creating conditions that give everyone a fair and just opportunity to reach their best possible health.
- Harnessing the collective power of leaders, partners, and community members.
- Securing and making the most of available resources.
- Measuring and sharing progress and results.

Grant Amount: Winning communities receive a $25,000 cash prize, along with the following:

- Customized communications materials about their community including videos, photos, and stories captured by journalists and other communications professionals;
- Strategic communications counsel leading up to, during, and in follow-up to the Prize winner announcement;
- National and local promotion of their stories and successes to inspire others' efforts, including outreach to media, policy stakeholders, and organizational networks; and
- Engagement in opportunities to build knowledge with other national and community leaders working to build a Culture of Health, including past Prize winners through the Prize Alumni Network.

- Native Hawaiian organization serving and representing the interests of Native Hawaiians in Hawaii

The Impact Fund Accepting Letters of Interest for Funding which Supports Litigation to Advance Social Justice.

The Impact Fund provides grants to nonprofit legal firms, private attorneys, and/or small law firms working to advance social justice in the areas of civil and human rights, environmental justice, and poverty law.

Through the fund's litigation program, grants will be awarded in support of public interest litigation that has the potential to benefit a large number of people, lead to significant law reform, and raise public consciousness of social justice issues. Preference will be given to civil rights, human rights, anti-poverty, and environmental justice cases that affect a marginalized group. Most grants will be awarded for class actions, but the fund also will support multi-plaintiff and environmental justice cases focused on significantly affecting a larger system. Impact Fund grants may be used for out-of-pocket litigation expenses such as expert fees and discovery costs, but not for attorney's fees, staff, or other overhead.

Grants will be awarded to private attorneys, small legal firms, and nonprofit legal entities that do not have adequate access to funding sources. The Catholic Campaign for Human Development Supports Organizations Led by Low-Income Individuals Working to Break the Cycle of Poverty and Improve Communities.

The Catholic Campaign for Human Development (CCHD), established by the Catholic bishops of the United States, supports organizations led by low-income individuals as they work to break the cycle of poverty and improve their communities. CCHD's grant programs include Community Development Grants and Economic Development Grants.

- Community Development Grants support nonprofit organizations that nurture the participation of people living in poverty to change structures and policies that affect their lives. At least 50 percent of those benefiting from the applying organization's efforts must be people experiencing poverty.
- Economic Development Grants support economic development institutions that include the voice of the poor and marginalized in developing new businesses that offer good jobs or develop assets that will be owned by local communities.

CCHD is concerned about the growth, development, and dignity of the individual person as well as the collective strengthening of the low-income community. An organization seeking CCHD support must demonstrate ongoing leadership development. The applicant organization must also demonstrate both the intention and the capacity to effectively work toward the elimination of the root causes of poverty and to enact institutional change. The organization's efforts should directly benefit a relatively large number of people, rather than a few individuals. In an effort to more accurately measure the level of low-income participation in organizations, positive consideration will be given to organizations that use either the Very Low-Income or Low-Income household definition of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Grant Amount: Grant amounts range between $25,000 and $75,000.

Eligibility: Eligible applicants include U.S. charitable, non-profit organizations as defined by section 501(c)(3) of the IRS tax code. Applicant organizations must not participate in or promote activities that contradict the moral and social teachings of the Catholic Church and must in no way work against the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops' priorities to defend human life and dignity, strengthen family life and the institution of marriage, and foster diversity. At least 50 percent of those benefiting from the organization's efforts must be people experiencing poverty, and people living in poverty must have the dominant voice in the organization.

Due Date: Pre-applications for both programs may be submitted between September 1 and November 1, annually.

The Brady Education Foundation Supports Educational Projects Designed to Evaluate the Effectiveness of Programs that Promote Positive Outcomes for Children from Underserved Groups.

The Brady Education Foundation support projects that evaluate the effectiveness of programs designed to promote positive cognitive and/or achievement outcomes for children (birth through 18 years) from underserved groups and/or low-resourced communities (minority ethnic groups, low-income families). Additionally, these projects may evaluate what works for whom, under what conditions; the reasons for effects; and cost-benefit analyses. The Foundation favors projects that:

- Represent strong collaborative relationships between researchers and practitioners, and other community stakeholders as appropriate, and where the community/population being studied is represented in the project's leadership team;
- Evaluate programs consistent with strength-based approaches rather than deficit models;
- Projects for which operational funding for the program is already secured so that funding from the Foundation is used only for evaluation activities;
- Evaluate programs that show promise of being affordable, accessible and sustainable;
- Projects that employ randomized control designs (including wait-list control designs when assignment to wait-list condition is randomized). Comparison group designs may also be employed when strong efforts are made to control for potential confounding variables (e.g., due to selection effects). The Foundation rarely funds evaluation projects that employ neither randomized control nor comparison group designs;

- Evaluate effects on measurable child outcomes;
- Consider the specific and unique assets and needs of children from underserved populations and/or low-resourced communities (e.g., minority ethnic groups, low-income communities). Concerning race and ethnicity, the Foundation seeks to increase understanding of what works best for children from diverse racial, ethnic, and cultural backgrounds (e.g., African American, Latino, Native American).

The Temper of the Times Foundation supports advertising designed to promote the conservation and restoration of native wildlife, plants, and ecosystems in the United States. Grant funds may be used to fund the production of print, radio, or television ads; to pay for advertising space or airtime; or to produce or distribute pamphlets, books, videos, or press packets. Because grants are for wildland ecosystem advertising campaigns, not for general organizational support, they may not be used to cover costs associated with the production of organization newsletters, membership campaigns, or for staff salaries. In addition, the Foundation cannot fund lobbying efforts or candidates for political office.

The Economic Development Administration Announces Funding for Construction, Non-Construction, Technical Assistance, and Revolving Loan Fund Projects.

The Economic Development Administration (EDA) announces funding to support projects in rural and urban areas which provide investments that support construction, non-construction, technical assistance, and revolving loan funds under EDA's Public Works and Economic Adjustment Assistance

(EAA) programs. Grants and cooperative agreements made under these programs are designed to leverage existing regional assets and support the implementation of economic development strategies that advance new ideas and creative approaches to advance economic prosperity in distressed communities. EDA provides strategic investments on a competitive-merit-basis to support economic development, foster job creation, and attract private investment. Through these grant programs, EDA supports bottom-up strategies that build on regional assets to spur economic growth and resiliency. EDA encourages its grantees throughout the country to develop initiatives that present new ideas and creative approaches to advance economic prosperity in distressed communities.

Through the Public Works program, EDA provides catalytic investments to help distressed communities build, design, or engineer critical infrastructure and facilities that will help implement regional development strategies and advance bottom-up economic development goals to promote regional prosperity. The Public Works program provides resources to meet the construction and/or infrastructure design needs of communities to enable them to become more economically competitive. Prior examples of investments EDA has supported through the Public Works program include projects supporting water and sewer system improvements, industrial parks, high-tech shipping and logistics facilities, workforce training facilities, business incubators and accelerators, brownfield redevelopment, technology-based facilities, wet labs, multi-tenant manufacturing facilities, science and research parks, and telecommunications infrastructure and development facilities. Investments must clearly lead to the creation or retention of long-term high-quality jobs.

Through the EAA program, EDA provides investments that support a wide range of construction and non-construction activities (including infrastructure, design and engineering, technical assistance, economic recovery strategies, and capitalization or re-capitalization of Revolving Loan Funds (RLF)) in regions experiencing severe economic dislocations that may occur suddenly or over time. EDA utilizes EAA investments to provide resources that help communities experiencing or anticipating economic dislocations to plan and implement specific solutions to leverage their existing regional economic advantages to support economic development and job creation. Like Public Works investments, EAA investments are designed to help communities catalyze public-private partnerships to foster collaboration, attract investment, create jobs, and foster economic resiliency and prosperity. For example, EDA might provide funding to a university or community college to create and launch an economic diversification strategy to promote and enhance the growth of emerging industries in a region facing job losses due to declines in regionally important industries.

Grant Amount: Grant amounts range from $100,000 to $3,000,000.

Eligibility: Eligible applicants include:

NEW!!

The Health Resources and Services Administration Announces Funding for the Development of Rural Integrated Health Care Networks.

The Health Resources and Services Administration announces the opportunity to apply for funding under the Rural Health Network Development Planning Program ("Network Planning"). The purpose of the Network Planning program is to assist in the development of an integrated health care network, specifically network participants who do not have a history of formal collaborative efforts in order to: (i) achieve efficiencies; (ii) expand access to, coordinate, and improve the quality of essential health care services; and (iii) strengthen the rural health care system as a whole.

A rural health network is defined as an organizational arrangement among at least three separately owned regional or local health care providers that come together to develop strategies for improving health services delivery systems in a community. Health care networks can be an effective strategy to help smaller rural health care providers and health care service organizations align resources and strategies, achieve economies of scale and efficiencies, and address challenges more effectively as a group than as single providers. For example, a critical access hospital, a community health center, and a public health department may collaborate to form a network around a shared purpose. Other examples of health care providers could be: hospitals, public health agencies, home health providers, mental health centers, substance abuse service providers, rural health clinics, primary care providers, oral health providers, social service agencies, health profession schools, local school districts, emergency services providers, community and migrant health centers, federally-qualified health centers, tribal health programs, churches, faith-based organizations, and civic organizations that are/will be providing health care.

The goals of the Network Planning program are centered around approaches that will aid providers in better serving their communities given the changes taking place in health care, as providers transition from focusing on the volume of services to focusing on the value of services. The intent is that rural health networks will expand access to care, increase the use of health information technology, explore alternative health care delivery models, and continue to achieve quality health care across the continuum of care from prevention and wellness to acute and long-term care. The increasing focus on showing value in health care delivery creates incentives to develop regional systems of care that preserve local autonomy for rural communities while also ensuring access to the appropriate continuum of care for the local service population. It remains critical in the health care environment for rural providers to participate in efforts such as implementing population health strategies to demonstrate the quality and value they provide rural residents.

Grant Amount: Grant amounts of up to $100,000 are available.

Eligibility: To be eligible to receive a grant an entity shall be a rural public or rural nonprofit private entity; shall represent a network composed of participants that include 3 or more health care providers and that may be nonprofit or for-profit entities; and shall not previously have received a grant under this subsection (other than a grant for planning activities) for the same or a similar project.

The Health Resources and Services Administration Announces Funding for Reimbursement of Lost Wages to Living Organ Donors.

The Health Resources and Services Administration announces the opportunity to apply for funding under the Lost Wages Support for Living Organ Donors Demonstration Project. The primary purpose of this project is to assess whether reimbursing lost wages increases individuals' willingness to become living organ donors. Specifically, this demonstration project will study whether and how reimbursement for lost wages affect individuals' behaviors towards living donation, as indicated by willingness to undergo donor evaluation.

Funding for this project will:

- Ascertain the effect of providing reimbursement of lost wages on individuals' decisions to initiate the process of becoming living donors by undergoing donor evaluation; and
- Inform HRSA on the most effective and efficient mechanism to provide this support to living donors.

The project scope includes designing, implementing, and evaluating a demonstration project to assess whether reimbursing lost wages increases individuals' willingness to become living organ donors, by studying the effect of reimbursement of lost wages on individuals' decision to consider living donation. This award includes funding for the recipient to reimburse eligible prospective living donors, regardless of income, up to $5,000 in lost wages for donor evaluation and surgical procedures. The applicant should include a description of proposed efforts to engage stakeholders such as transplant centers, dialysis centers, patients on the transplant waitlist and organizations working on behalf of individuals in need of a transplant. The applicant should also include strategies to work closely with the National Living Donor Assistance Center (NLDAC) in order to use and disburse available resources, in adherence with combined maximum limits, to support the purpose of this project.

The Department of Health and Human Services Seek Applications for Projects to Provide Information Resources or Services to Health Disparity Populations and Their Providers.

The Department of Health and Human Services seeks projects that will bring useful, usable health information to health disparity populations and their health care providers. Access to useful, usable, understandable health information is an important factor when making health decisions. A project can develop and deploy a new information resource or service, or expand and improve an existing resource or service in order to meet the needs of a health disparity population. For a proposed project to be competitive, there must be evidence that the intended audience is a health disparity population and/or their healthcare providers. A population is a health disparity population if there is a significant disparity in the overall rate of disease incidence, prevalence, morbidity, mortality or survival rates in the population as compared to the health status of the general population.

Topics that are responsive to this grant program include, but are not limited to:

- Developing or upgrading health information resources/services to meet the needs of health disparity populations.
- Providing health information resources/services to community organizations involved with health disparity populations.
- Developing information strategies to facilitate implementing patient-centered care and precision medicine within a health disparity population.
